Positioning Saddles are Sized for Optimum Comfort and Fit

Choosing a Saddle Style

Selecting the correct positioning saddle size is very important for optimum comfort and confidence in the saddle. It is also important to know what style of saddle you prefer. Seat Strap vs. Leg Strap, Floating vs. Stationary Dee Rings, Single vs. Double Dees, and leather vs. cloth construction are some of the options to consider. Our sales staff can help you choose the style that bests fits your needs and budget.

Choosing the Best Fit

The following sizing applies to all our saddles and uses a Dee to Dee Measurement (Point A to Point E) to help determine the correct and best fitting saddle size by ensuring the dee rings are properly located in front of the hipbones. With front location the user has better positioning ability and added comfort. This sizing also takes into account the Minimum Length Measurement (Point B), Maximum Length Measurement (Point D) and Center Measurement (Point C) so achieving the perfect fit is easy.

Dee to Dee Measurement - This measurement is the most important. It is the measurement from side dee to side dee on the waist belt of the saddle. Step 1 below explains how to obtain this measurement. (Point A to Point E)

Minimum Length Measurement - This is the length when the waist belt is buckled in the last hole. It is the smallest waist size the saddle will fit. (Point B)

Maximum Length Measurement - This is the length when the waist belt is buckled in the first hole. It is the largest waist size the saddle will fit. (Point D)

Center Measurement - This is the length when the waist belt is buckles in the fourth hole. If the saddle fits the user buckled in the fourth hole, there is enough room for adjustment to accommodate both summer and winter clothing. (Point C)

Getting the Perfect Fit

1. Drop down approximately 4" from the top of each hipbone and measure the distance around the back from hipbone to hipbone using a tape measure. Add 2" to this measurement. This is the Dee to Dee Measurement. Please note: the added 2" will bring the dee ring in front of the hipbones for better positioning. (See figure 1)
2. Find the user's Dee to Dee Measurement in the chart below. The user's correct positioning saddle/harness size is listed to the left of the proper Dee to Dee Measurement.
3. The user's Waist Measurement should fall between the Minimum and Maximum Length Measurements for that size. Remember to allow some room for adjustment for use with summer and winter clothing.
4. If user's Waist Measurement is larger than the Maximum Length for that size, we recommend the user go up to the next size to accommodate the Waist Measurement. If user's Waist Measurement is smaller than the Minimum Length for that size, we recommend the user go down a size. Please keep in mind that going down a size may place the dee rings further back which may not be as comfortable as when the dee rings are in front of the hipbones.

Weaver Leather sizing chart:

Saddle Size	Dee to Dee Measurement	Approximate Waist Size
XSmall	18"	26" to 34"
Small	20"	30" to 38"
Medium	22"	32" to 40"
Large	24"	36" to 44"
XLarge	26"	40" to 48"

Ropes and Accessories

Fire and rescue workers rely on lines for lifting heavy loads by helicopter or by block and tackle. Static or low stretch line is their preference because of the instant reaction to lift activity (i.e. no need to draw several feet of stretch before the load lifts). Rock climbers, however, need to ascend above their anchor point. If they fall using a static line it could be deadly because the line does not stretch. Therefore, rock climbers need spongy lines to arrest falls. Tree climbers, need a combination of both. Too stiff of a line makes for difficult knot tying and minor slips could be bone jarring. Too spongy a line costs climbers excess energy to remove slack or to move around limbs. Therefore, arborist lines have moderate bounce, thick abrasion resistance (polyester covers) and soft knot tying characteristics. Now good manufacturers add a waxing process to reduce friction between fibers that adds a barrier to keep out dirt and grit. In the past decade, weave construction and braid tensions have improved. Artistic Arborist offers the best climbing lines you can find. Our blends use the highest grade fibers (polyesters and nylons) needed for tree climbing and rigging. Rope with a high percentage of polyester is usually the most expensive. Our most popular ropes are manufactured by Samson and Pelican Rope that can be purchased by the foot, in pre-bagged 120 ft lengths or 150 ft, or as 600 ft-long spools. We also carry Yale Cordage Ropes with eye splices on one end for easy connection.

Types of Rope Construction

16-strand - The more strands a (braided) rope has, the rounder it tends to remain under load, making it easier to tie and untie. Of all tree climbing lines, 16-strand is the roundest, having a firm internal core. A benefit of 16-strand lines is that they can be spliced (see figure to left) meaning that an eye can be added to one end for split tail climbing technique.

12-strand - 12-strand lines are less expensive than 16-strand lines and tend to square off with high loads. 12-strand lines are solid braids that have no separate core. Although there are ways to manufacture 12-strands for easy splicing, the slice often results in a loose, limp product. Our 12-strand arborist lines are tightly woven, tough against abrasion and our second best selling line for tree climbing.

Climbing Lines vs. Rigging and Static Lines

Climbing lines should not be used as lowering lines, come-along ropes or bull ropes. Climbing lines are designed for maximum flexibility and handling qualities. They are not suitable for lowering operations. This is especially important if the rope has already been retired from climbing. Rigging lines and bull ropes are designed for lowering and come-along operations. They do not stretch and should not be used for climbing. Double-braid is the strongest rope, with the least amount of stretch available for tree rigging. Double-braid rope is 2 ropes in one. The inner core is protected by a tightly woven outer jacket, creating a strong, flexible line with low stretch characteristics. In the final stage of manufacturing, Artistic Arborist offers numerous types of climbing and rigging lines with the best combination of strength, wear resistance and elongation. We also have a selection of sling lines, lanyards, and throw lines. We'll help you in choosing the right rope for your needs.

Climbing, Rigging and Accessory Lines

The ropes sold by Artistic Arborist are ISO 9001 certified and meet or exceed ANSI standard Z133.11-2000. If you have any questions call us at the number listed above.

Arborplex (white w/ green) 1/2"

Arbor-Plex™ combines polyester and polyolefin fibers in a "DuraTite" construction that tightens the braid to keep the rope round and firm for knot control and keeps the strands snag resistant. The tough polyester jacket fibers surround the polyolefin center fibers to maximize resistance to wear and fiber fusing while creating a lightweight high-strength rope. The outer polyester fibers use Parallax® fiber orientation to prolong rope life and to minimize the sawing action of fibers over rough surfaces.

Poison Ivy has a unique double braid construction that stays round when pinched by camming mechanisms, yet it is unusually flexible and knot friendly. ## Climbing Equipment and Accessories

Tree & Pole Climbers, Pads & Straps, Gaffs

What is the difference between a tree and a pole climber? It's based on the length of the gaff (or hook) that is inserted into the wood. Pole climbers, designed for climbing telephone poles and palm trees have a shorter gaff than tree climbers. Artistic Arborist carries the largest assortment of tree and pole climbers and their replacement parts.

Fliplines

Fliplines are used in combination with climbing saddles and pole climbers. They are snapped into the saddle and wrap around the pole so that the person climbing up the pole is safely secured. You flip the line up as you climb up the pole. Wire-core fliplines are designed to withstand accidental encounters with chain saws... to keep you hanging instead of falling! Non-wire fliplines are lighter and make a good secondary tie-in when you are using handsaws. They come in various lengths with fixed or swivel snaps.

Carabiners, Snaps, Ascenders, Pulleys, etc.

Our inventory has the largest and most complete assortment of carabiners and snaps, lanyards, rings, pulleys and ascenders available in the Valley for all of your climbing and safety needs!

TreeSqueeze by Buckingham

Used for fall restraint and work positioning. This innovative work positioning lanyard allows for a secured ascent up the tree giving you all the safety and confidence you need when out in the field. TreeSqueeze™ integrates a choking lanyard system that keeps you from falling down the tree in the event of a Gaff out. Meets ANSI Z133 by keeping you secure while climbing on spurs. Made from the same high strength 7/16" Uniline used on our popular Buck RigidLine but we doubled the rope for extra rigidity, cut resistance and surface area. The double rope specifically protects against cuts from handsaws and provides the user with a smoother ascent. Aluminum ring Prusik provides users with quick and easy adjustment for different diameter trees. Ring Prusik also provides a secure tie-in point when a natural tie in point doesn't exist. Prusik is key for easy descent, self-rescue and even doubles as a friction saver. Retrieval of the TreeSqueeze™ from the ground uses the same retrieving method our popular friction savers use.

Safety Gear

Gloves

Many people do not realize how important a good fit in gloves is for protecting your hands. It is vital to get a precise fit. If your gloves are too large you risk getting blisters and have trouble handling your equipment. If the gloves are too small you'll develop excess strain and lose efficiency. We carry all glove sizes to cover the smallest to the largest hands. We also carry the finest quality gloves, split grain and top grain cowhide for long life and protection against splinters and thorns. We also have gloves for handling chemicals and working soil.

Safety Gear

Besides gloves we carry eye protection-sunglasses, safety goggles, screen shields and insect netting. We also have hardhats and accessories for them, along with safety vests, visors, ear plugs, etc. Browse through our catalog. Also, check road safety items (Signs, tape, etc.).

Pruning

Artistic Arborist has the largest selection of pruning tools available in the Southwest. We pride ourselves on carrying only the finest equipment available from Japan, Switzerland, and the United States.

Saws

The Japanese first introduced “tri-cut” saw blades to the industry about 40 years ago. These blades go by names such as Turbocut, Razor Cut and Tiger Tooth depending on the manufacturer. They are revolutionary because they reduce the effort needed to make pruning cuts and cut more rapidly than conventional blades but they also leave a beautiful smooth finish to the cut limb that accelerates healing and wound closure. ARS and Silky saws are made by the same lineage of craftsmen that produced samurai swords in Medieval Japan. Other manufactures we carry include ARS, Bahco, Barnel, Silky and Fanno. Saw blades come in various lengths. They can be straight or curved, handles can be angled, curved, open or close handled, made of wood or composite materials and saws can fold or be fixed. We also sell replacement blades and scabbards from Weaver, ARS and others to keep your blades sharp and protect you from injury.

What to Look For in Saw Blades

Artistic Arborist, only sells tri-cut saw and does not sell conventional saw blades on its pruning tools. Conventional blades have every other tooth bent out to make their cutting action. These saws dull quickly and leave a raw, coarse cut on the wood that heals slowly. Japanese tri-cut blades are machine ground with straight sides, thinner at the top and thicker at the teeth so the blade does not bind while cutting. The saw teeth are precisely ground at three separate angles, hence the name “tri-cut”. The process requires a special automated machine made in Japan that costs over $5 million dollars. These remarkable saw blades exhibit long lasting sharpness, clog-free sawing and a finished cut so smooth it appears to be planed. Tri-cut saws don’t rip like a saw, they cut like a knife.

Tricut blades are available in several different finishes. They are made of high carbon steel to hold the razor sharp edge but tends to be brittle. The Japanese have made them more flexible by hot bath quenching. Some blades are chemical nickled or hard chrome plated to offer greater hardness, rust proofing and prevent sap resins from sticking. Other blades are impulse hardened which heats and cools the blade within several thousandths of a second and extends the blade life by three times in normal usage. Another innovation found in some of the ARS brand blades are the curvature ARS teeth which reduces saw binding even further. A final innovation in the ARS line is the "Super Turbocut" blade with U-shaped gaps called "gullets" or "rakers" that remove saw dust to make cutting action even more rapid. Some added features on the pole saw blades are special hooks at the end of the blade to remove small twigs with a simple pulling action and the "bark cutters" at the base of the blade. This is used to jam into the underside of the limb at its attachment point on the trunk prior to cutting the limb to prevent bark from peeling and tearing on the trunk as the limb falls. This is a very handy tool to prevent tree damage during the season when the bark is slipping.

SHEARS & LOPPERS & LONG REACH PRUNERS

Loppers vs. Shears

Loppers use the same type of cutting heads as hand pruners but cut larger diameter branches. Length of handles and materials used vary by model. For cutting large diameter branches, more than 2" look for telescoping handles with more leverage and a ratcheting head. Shears or hedge trimmers use scissor type blades that are designed to cut smaller diameter branches. The shearing action gives a smooth even cut to multiple twigs so that hedges can be shaped. Selection may vary, call store for availability.
